Seven Stingers in Calgary for national hockey team camps

Seven current and former Concordia Stingers women's hockey players are attending Team Canada camps in Calgary at the Father David Bauer Olympic Arena until Aug. 21.

Corinne Swirsky, the three-time MVP in Canadian university women's hockey, heads a list of six Stingers invited to the senior team's development camp. Swirsky, who graduated last spring and has moved to Calgary to do graduate work, will be joined by goaltender Jessika Audet, left wing Lisa-Marie Breton and right wing Leanne Martell. Both Breton and Martell will be in the Stingers' lineup this season under the direction of head coach Les Lawton, while Audet graduated in May.

Two former players will also be at camp - defenders Therese Brisson (1986-'89) and Delaney Collins (1995-'98). In all, 42 players have been invited to the session.

The senior team will gather again in October for a week-long evaluation camp and then begin preparations for the Four Nations Cup in Salt Lake City Nov. 4-12. The world championship will be held in Minneapolis April 2-8. Canada is the defending champion.

A seventh Stinger, right wing Marie-Claude Allard, will travel West to participate in the Canadian under-22 team selection camp, which will be held at the same time as the senior camp. Twenty-eight players have been invited to the workouts. The roster will be trimmed down to 22 and then the junior players will meet their America counterparts in a three-game series.

The under-22 program was set up in 1998 and designed to give players a chance to develop and experience international hockey at much younger age.
